CHAIRPERSON'S REVIEW 2020

As I consider The Rise Foundation over the course of 2020, a quote by the poet Iain Thomas come to mind:

"Everything has changed and yet, I am more me than I've ever been."

This encapsulates the experience of Rise over the unexpected terrain of serving family members with loved ones in addiction who needed our support during a pandemic.

So much changed in terms of how Rise brought services to family members (online), which we had not thought possible prior to the pandemic, but which became essential to so many people during this time. We identified and expanded supports outside the scope of our normal 10-week family programmes such as one to one counselling (again - online), of which so many family members could avail. We developed new ways of working so family members' needs could be met in their unimaginably difficult circumstances. Rise therapists remained tireless in their dedication and agility to help our clients. In all of this, the demand for services rose steadily, reflecting the added strain that many family members were experiencing.

Our funding changed dramatically as well over the pandemic period in that the large, in person events that we rely on for all of our funding, were not possible and instead new ideas and approaches took their place. Events such as the Big Dip presented itself as a new way to connect with so many people who want to support the work that we do, and we raised in excess of €11,500 through the hard work of Jonathan Smith of Ernesto's café and his stalwart team of supporters. We look forward to the time when we can engage with our supporters through in- person events again, and we were recently able to get a taste of that in 2021 through our annual golf classic which was organised by Sean Kirby of RWL – Advanced Solutions. A great success with over €22,000 raised.

The Board maintained our focus on governance by working towards compliance with the Charity Governance Code through frequent, online, Board meetings and plenty of work behind the scenes.

As chairperson, the publication of our 2020 reports seems a fitting time to express deep gratitude to my colleagues on the Board, our therapists, our executive team, our generous donors from all walks of life and locations - and most importantly, the family members who reached out to Rise in these most uncertain of times. Their bravery and strength humbles and inspires me to help Rise continue its' impactful and important work.

And so, although everything changed in 2020 in the way that Rise delivered and funded its' services, what stayed the same is our commitment to support families impacted by a loved one's addictive behaviour through awareness, education and therapy. That is who we are- now more than ever.

CEO REPORT 2020 FRANCES BLACK

I am delighted to present the annual report for the year ended December 31st, 2020.

2020 has been the most challenging year to date since I set up the RISE Foundation in 2009. The lockdown in March 2020, meant that we had to immediately curtail our services and cancel our main fundraising events. However, as a consequence of this disruption we were forced to rethink how we delivered our services and as we began to offer our services online it has resulted in people from all over the island availing of our supports and expanded our reach.

We developed an online version of our ten week Family Programme and this has proved very successful with very encouraging feedback from the participants.

The one to one counselling service moved online immediately and the increased demand for this service has resulted in four new counsellors joining the team at Rise.

Looking to the future it is clear that in order to be in a position to continue to offer these services online and indeed continue to expand the services we provide, we will need to increase our fundraising activities and I am confident that we will secure the backing and funding to deliver these services.

"I believe that the services provided by RISE to family members who have a loved one with an alcohol, drug or gambling problem should be available free of charge and to this end we will endeavour to secure Government funding."

The impact of the pandemic is manifesting itself in increased levels of stress and anxiety in the family members we are supporting and I believe it is imperative that this is addressed before it leads to a drain on the already stretched mental health services.

I would like to pay huge tribute to the counsellors who have worked tirelessly to support our clients through these challenging times. I also want to acknowledge and thank the Rise foundation Board, especially our Chairperson Danica Murphy who has given great leadership in these very trying times.

Rise is committed to broadening the reach of its services, alongside building sustainable sources of funding. At this time of crisis, it is more urgent than ever that we continue to provide timely and relevant support to those whose lives are severely impacted by living with someone in addiction.

I am looking forward to the future with optimism and a belief that we will be able to continue providing the valuable supports to the sometimes forgotten family members in our country.

FUNDRAISING 2020

Our inaugural Friends of Rise lunch was held on Feb 27th 2020 in Saba restaurant, South William St Dublin. Who could have imagined on that day, the new reality which would be ours a few short weeks later? And more importantly- that the reality of those suffering with loved ones in addiction would be as challenging and as painful as it has been for so many of them.

However on that day we acknowledged and celebrated many of the supporters and businesses that have helped Rise deliver on its mission to family members with loved ones in addiction and equally importantly raised badly needed funds.

We thank Paul Caden and all the team in Saba for such a lovely event and look forward to the day when we can all gather together again for the next Friends of Rise Lunch.
